Truck flips on side, spills contents

By David Gosnell

GRANITE CITY — A tractor trailer carrying railroad equipment flipped on its side and spilled its contents Thursday.

The accident occurred about 8:30 a.m. at the intersection of Illinois 203 and Ohio Avenue in front of Skelly's Gateway Truck Plaza truck stop.

The 18-wheel truck is owned by Foxfire International and driven by Leon Watts, of Marine, according to a Madison police report. The truck was apparently turning south onto Illinois 203 from the truck stop when it flipped over.

"The load shifted and it just went over," said a passenger in the truck, Harold Henson, of Ballwin, Mo.

The truck was carrying wheels and axles for railroad boxcars on its open bed. The items were being delivered to Saugat, said Henson. The equipment spilled onto the right shoulder of the highway as the truck fell to its side. Neither Henson or Watt was injured.

There was minor damage to the truck. The equipment was loaded onto another truck and taken from the site.

Parking a problem for the handicapped

By Bill Bagby

GRANITE CITY — It's easy for some people to take for granted parking a car and walking into a building with ease.

But for the handicapped, it's something they take seriously.

"LAWS HAVE BEEN passed providing handicapped parking, wheelchair accessibility to public buildings and other conveniences to aid handicapped persons."

"The laws are easy to pass. But, some handicapped people say, enforcing them is a different issue."

Some handicapped citizens say they are faced daily with the problem of non-handicapped drivers parking in designated handicapped zones.

"IT'S BEEN A thorn in my side for a long time," said Granite City resident Glen Bettorf.

Bettorf, who has been in a wheelchair for 32 years, travels in a van with a lift on the side to aid him in getting in and out.

He said he has his own solution when a non-handicapped driver is parked in a handicapped zone.

"I PARK RIGHT behind them and go right into the store," he said. "I don't recommend this for everyone, but that's one way to contract it."

Once parked, Bettorf said, he sometimes has trouble getting his lift down due to cars being parked too close to his van.

Bettorf, who regularly attends Granite City Council meetings, said he had difficulty when the meetings were held at Township Hall.

HE SAID he has tried to get the handicapped parking zone, located at the south end of the building, moved to the front of the hall.

"Even after talking with Township Supervisor Nelson Hagnauer, Rep. Sam Wolf and State Sen. Sam Vadalabene, Bettorf said, nothing was changed."

"It's so asinine there," he said.

Council meetings have since been shifted back to the City Hall.

BESIDES HAVING to park so far from the entrance of the Township Hall, Bettorf said, it takes time getting his wheelchair from his van to the door.

That can be a problem, he said, when it rains.

"Heck, you sit through the meeting half-soaked," he said.

"IT USED TO BE before they put up handicapped signs, it was difficult to find a place to park," said Juanita Crawley.

"I find them to be a help but there's still a lot of places that need them," she said.

Crawley, president of the Granite City Council of Senior Citizens, has been handicapped for 53 years. She drives her own van and travels extensively due to work with the seniors.

THOUGH the handicapped parking zones are useful, Crawley said, the need exists for many more.

To be able to park in a handicapped zone, a vehicle must display a special handicapped license plate or a red-and-black handicapped card, according to information from Illinois Secretary of State Jim Edgar.

Handicapped license plates cost the same as a regular license plate. To qualify for the plates, the han-

Plant clearing obstacles, construction to start soon

By David Gosnell

GRANITE CITY — Construction of a new plant in Granite City moved a step closer with the Tri-City Regional Port District Board reacting favorably to an easement grant. The Port District Board voted Monday to be "favorably inclined" to grant a permanent easement to Eticam Inc., of Warwick, R.I. The company plans to build a $3.5 processing plant adjacent to Port District land. The plant will employ about 50 people.

ETICAM NEEDS a permanent 50-foot wide easement from the Port District to construct utility lines on Slough Road, part of which is on Tri-City Port land. Eticam also needs a temporary easement from the Port District to build an access road for the plant's construction.

Port District engineer Jerry Lavelle proposed the board grant a temporary easement in order not to delay Eticam's construction plans.

But board members said more information is needed on how much Eticam would need to pay. And what such an agreement would mean for future Port District development still needs to be determined, they said.

The board agreed to hold a special meeting to act on the easement in order not to delay Eticam's construction plans.

PORT DISTRICT general manager Robert Wydra said Eticam would like to begin construction in September.

Eticam was to start construction two months after 6.6 acres was purchased last February. The land, which is currently part of Venice Township, is adjacent to the Port District and the Norfolk & Western Railway on Illinois 3.

The company has delayed construction until Granite City annexes the property. Eticam needs the annexation to take advantage of $9 million in revenue bonds the city authorized for the project last December.

"One of our hang-ups is that we are not technically part of Granite City," said Eticam attorney Daniel Hayes.

BEFORE the property can be annexed, however, property owned by Norfolk & Western Railway, which links the city with Eticam's property, must be annexed.

Norfolk has been slow in accepting the annexation, said Hayes.

"They are a big bureaucracy ... It's hard to get them focusing on Granite City, Ill.," he said.

Because Eticam has already lined up financing for the plant at 13 percent interest, the delays are costing the company, said Hayes.

"THE CLOCK is running on us. We want to start as soon as possible," he said.

Eticam uses a process to extract valuable minerals and precious metals from steel manufacturing waste. The products are resold to jewelry and electronics industries. The plant will process waste from this area's steel industries.

Army Corps' surplus boat could meet Port District's fire needs

By David Gosnell

GRANITE CITY — A boat for fighting fires may have been located by the Tri-City Regional Port District board.

The board will send a representative to look at a boat, docked in Detroit, owned by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

A FEDERAL and state search for a fire boat was conducted but none was found, said Port District General Manager Robert Wydra.

"They did a search ... there were no fire boats available," said Wydra at last week's board meeting.

Wydra said he recently received a call from Illinois officials about the Detroit boat.

The boat was docked because of fund cutbacks, said Wydra.

THE 40-FOOT "push" boat has a $10,000 price tag and is not equipped for fighting fires. The equipment would have to be installed.

Illinois Department of Transportation officials have indicated they would give the district up to $5,000 to help with firefighting equipment costs for such a boat, Wydra said.

The district has often discussed acquiring a boat to fight fires near or at the port because of a concern that passing barges with flammable products may have an accident and endanger port facilities.

"ALL BARGE traffic on the river comes by our port. No products in the port are a problem. The trouble is what passes us and has an accident," Wydra said.

Buying a firefighting boat does not mean area fire departments are inadequately prepared for a port fire, Wydra said.

"If you could also fight it from the water, it would give added fire protection. We would feel more comfortable," he said.

ST. LOUIS owns the only fire boat that would be available on short notice should a serious fire occur at the port. But the St. Louis boat would probably not arrive in time to be effective in such a fire, said Wydra.

No decision will be made on the Detroit boat until it is known whether adding fire equipment would be feasible or cost-effective.

But Wydra said the boat appeared to be worth examining.

"YOU CAN'T be picky when you pick up surplus," he said.

The prices of some surplus fire boats have ranged from $70,000 to $200,000 and were out of the district's price range, said Wydra.

The boat will be evaluated by retired U.S. Coast Guard officer Gene Fox, the district's chief of maintenance.

Staff person hired by committee

By Bill Bagby

GRANITE CITY — A part-time staff person has been hired by Granite City's Senior Citizen Advisory Committee.

Ruth Reko, of St. Louis, was hired by the committee to assess information on senior citizen services that are or are not being offered.

A CONTRACT for Reko was approved by committee members, Mayor Von Dee Cruse and Township Supervisor Nelson Hagnauer, said chairman Bill Burcky.

Reko, who holds a master's degree in social work, is working on her gerontology certificate at SIUE.

"Since starting work two weeks ago, Reko said, she has mailed letters of introduction to 13 agencies that offer services for seniors. She has also begun gathering brochures explaining services offered to seniors in the state, she said.

HER FIRST contacts, with area agencies provided her with "very good information," she told the committee.

Reko said she has learned there are 6,123 seniors in Granite City.

"The numbers are pretty important," she said.

FOLLOWING HER visits to the area agencies, she will submit a report stating what services are being offered for seniors, what services are not being offered, sources of funding for the agencies, and the type of staff each agency has.

The report will help the committee determine senior services being duplicated and services not being offered at all.

"This is the first thing this committee has done," said (See STAFF PERSON, Page 15A)

Not impressed by probers

To the editor:

By the end of last week, even the liberal Washington Post had it up to the eyes with Senate Judiciary liberals, including Paul Simon. Because Justice William Rehnquist performed as an impeccable legal scholar during his 15 years at the Supreme Court bench, the panel resolved to skip his judicial service and probe the preceding 15 years.

Going back a half-generation, they discovered the deed to Rehnquist's Vermont house stipulated he couldn't sell to Jews; that under a covenant he could only sell his Arizona house to whites. Never mind that the provisions were unenforceable since the 1950s, nor that John F. Kennedy's Georgetown house had the same provision.

They ferreted out that Rehnquist belonged to a men-only fun club, the Alfaia, where all attendees, wearing funny hats, met for dinner once each year. They insisted the Justice Department release memos Rehnquist wrote when he was a Justice Department official.

To the drum-beat of "show-time," the inquisition still goes on, Simon playing the role of the distressed, agonized man of conscience with signature bow-tie and furrowed brow.

What about Rehnquist's political watching in Arizona in the 1960s? A lead witness, a former U.S. prosecutor, confessed he relied on hearsay that Rehnquist had harassed voters. Although the ex-Democratic state chairman of Arizona admitted he had received no complaints about Rehnquist, the probe still goes on.

The only substantive question made against Rehnquist concerning his philosophy has been his "discredited" — on the basis of legal history, a subject on which the Judiciary Committee is, ironically, notoriously weak.

At the outset the allegation looked good. Rehnquist had written a memo as a young law clerk to Justice

Robert Jackson that could be interpreted as supporting retention of Plessy v. Ferguson, the separate-but-equal decision of 1896.

News media, reflecting only surface knowledge of the issue, trumpeted it. For a time the issue hung over the hearing because Rehnquist, while eloquent and cogent in his decisions, does not perform well in bursts, hesitations and ambiguities.

Because his liberal inquirers lacked historical awareness, they thought they had him. Was Rehnquist a deep-hued segregationist? They thought so.

Then, like errant schoolboys, they were rebuked by their staff; they better not pursue the matter; and if they continued on this tack, they were likely to be embarrassed by the similarity of positions of eminent jurists and historians to the memo Rehnquist wrote on Plessy. Rather than arrogantly seeking to plunder federal records to embarrass Rehnquist from memos written decades ago, it would have been ad- visable for liberal senators to do their job, which is to evaluate the intellectual credentials of the nominee and his philosophy — which is squarely consistent with a President who on his last electoral go-round carried 49 of the states.

With the great Reagan-supporting center of the U.S. public, no senator has been more harmed than Joseph Biden of Delaware who, though not so vehement as Howard Metzenbaum, comes across as a duplicitous wise-acre and far less thoughtful than the presidential prospect he wishes to resemble.

The Senate Judiciary Committee liberals could have done much better. In the case of the Rehnquist hunt, the witches are doing the hunting.

Army center, community help each other "Friends are necessary to a happy life. When friendship deserts us, we are as lonely and helpless as a ship, left by the tide high upon the shore. When friendship returns to us, it is as though the tide came back, gave us buoyancy and freedom, and opened to us the wide places of the world."

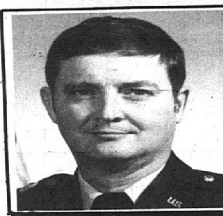

Harry Emerson Fosdick During the past 15 months that I have commanded the St. Louis Area Support Center (SLASC), formerly the Granite City Army Depot, I have been constantly reminded of the importance of sound community relationships — friendships — between SLASC and the Tri-City Area.

I am very aware of the consequences when the Army does not openly communicate with the civic leaders.

I hope that we will continue to "open the doors," showing the importance of SLASC to the surrounding communities.

Each day, over 1,000 personnel come to work at the 90 separate organizations — the U.S. Coast Guard, Farmers Home Administration, Bell Technical Operations and others.

Men and women from the local metropolitan area work to maintain the facilities, warehouses, housing, commissary, post exchange, and golf course.

Since the installation's major mission is to provide administrative and logistical support to all Department of Defense and federal agencies in the St. Louis metropolitan area, it is natural that most of the employees and soldiers come from the local community.

I have checked with many of our personnel and I am amazed at how many parents and relatives worked here when the "Depot" employed over 5,000 people.

We may never see that figure again, but I can assure you that SLASC is growing each day with more federal tenants and soldiers. I am also glad to report that the installation procurement office awarded over $6 million to large businesses and $12.6 million to small businesses in fiscal year 1985. The majority of the contracts went to local firms.

If the trend continues, we will award more this fiscal year.

In September, a U.S. Naval Reserve Construction Battalion

(SeaBees) will be stationed here permanently. When fully manned (over 700 personnel), the battalion will be able to work some civil projects which I am quite sure will benefit all of us in the Tri-City Area.

Before Christmas, we hope to hear the final decision about moving the Army Readiness Reserve Training Center (ARRTC) from Fort McCoy, Wis., to SLASC. With that program, we could come over 300 new jobs and $20 million in new construction, injecting a substantial amount of money into the Tri-City Area.

The bonds of friendship between SLASC and the Tri-City Area are getting stronger each passing week. I eagerly accepted Mayor Von Dee's Cruse's invitation to join the Economic Development Committee, which is setting the future economic path for Granite City. If the Army's future plans are successful at SLASC, it will be because we have the solid support of the Economic Development Committee and the civic and business leaders at a level of support which has been outstanding in the past months.

It is an honor to command this installation and I look forward to growing community friendship in the months ahead.

Public safety loses to politics, again

We objected in November when Dick Ervay was appointed head of the city's Emergency Services and Disaster Agency.

We objected because a person with 25 years of experience in civil defense, Harold Mayfield, was asked to resign by a member of Mayor Von Dee Cruse's Administration to make way for someone with comparably little experience: Ervay.

Our belief is there was no sound reason for replacing Mayfield. We agreed with those who said the civil defense job should never become a patronage position.

But, when Ervay was named, we wiped the slate clean. We intended to be fair with him; after all, it is just a part-time job.

A positive, front page story on the new civil defense director appeared during the months Ervay served as director, the department has made progress. He helped get the department some equipment: a remote radio, a generator and other items. He did a good job, we understand.

Ervay sold his restaurant in March. He no longer had a full-time job. The City Council was asked in July to make the civil defense job a full-time position.

Ervay quit after aldermen decided not to provide extra tax money to make the part-time patronage job a full-time patronage job.

Ervay was hired by the District 9 Board of Education as director of food services. He now has a full-time job.

Just eight months after removing Mayfield, who would have been content with a part-time job, the mayor again finds he has a vacancy for director of the ESDA.

"We hope the new civil defense director learns quickly. And that, if a new civil defense director is appointed after the next mayoral election, the new director will also learn quickly."

"And the one after that. And so on until someone holds the public safety in higher esteem than politics."

People dying there

It was a tub-thumping, name-calling confrontation two hours when the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee pilloried State Secretary George Shultz on the subject of our policy toward South Africa.

Patiently, Secretary Shultz sought to explain that unilateral sanctions would worsen the problem for blacks in South Africa and adjacent nations.

"We are already enforcing a fuller array of measures against the white-ruled government of Pretoria than is any European nation."

But his explanation got little media coverage. His critics got much.

Delaware Sen. Joe Biden pounded the desk to focus TV cameras on himself when he shouted, "People are dying over there! People are dying!"

State Secretary Shultz believes it "makes no sense, politically, economically or morally, to compound the suffering of an entire region... just as a gesture of outrage."

But Sen. Biden would have none of that argument. He demanded sanctions as "the only remaining alternative open."

"People are dying over there!" he persisted. "People are dying!"

Our nation's selective indignation makes for some strange alliances in Congress.

In Senate Foreign Relations, for example, you would expect Sens. Edward Kennedy and Alan Cranston to oppose the administration.

But joining Kennedy and Cranston are "conservative" Hoosier Republican Richard Lugar.

And Kansas' liberal Republican Nancy Kassebaum.

A political pragmatist knows that about the only way for a Republican to get himself or herself on TV is to do or say something critical of the President.

There is another dimension, however, to "ruth" public debate relating to South Africa. What's left of apartheid there has become a symbol of suppression of minorities.

A cynic might suggest that some people with ambition for higher political or judicial office want to go on record as a friend of minorities.

I do not believe such posturing accomplishes its purpose. Minorities have a gut instinct for knowing who their all-water friends are.

Also, the hypocrisy of beating one's breast over South Africa while ignoring 400,000 black South Africans, each costing more than $100 a year to maintain.

While ignoring even the barbaric genocide which the Soviets are committing in Afghanistan.

Hey, Joe, Joe, you are dying over there! Why don't you pick on someone your own size?

Here are some principles for meeting new principals

There was a time when kids knew who their principals would be from the time they entered kindergarten to the first day of high school. I recall knowing that the grade school principal, who had been the school's principal since the beginning of recorded history, was a fellow who really didn't like kids. He had a funny sounding name that was easily ridiculed.

On the other hand, old man Campbell at the junior high was a man who could be reasoned with, who actually ate with the kids in the cafeteria. Then there was the un-touchable ogre who was the high school principal. He was known to be the moral authority of the school system, ejecting high-schoolers for wearing the wrong clothes and saying the wrong things.

All this knowledge came early from years, no, decades, of older brothers and sisters telling their naive siblings in a small Southern Illinois town about these principals' personality traits and disorders. We were forewarned.

By David Gosnell

These men were permanent fixtures of the school system.

Rapid changes in District 9's principalships in the last year have probably left a lot of kids wondering what to expect from these now-unknown administrators. Out of 12 District 9 schools, only three have the same principals as last year. More changes may come very soon. The high school does not yet have a principal, with the school term only days away.

I have a few suggestions on how kids can deal with this situation.

"For you grade-schoolers, ask your parents if they know the name of your new principal. Memorize it. If you see your new principal in the hallway on the first day, don't be afraid, just say 'Hi Mr. or Mrs.' Tell your friends that you have met the new principal."

"For junior-high students, make it a point to ask a teacher who the new principal is. In the first week, ask about any changes that the new principal may make. If you hear a rumor about any changes, confirm it with the new principal. Be sure to talk to your friends about their first impressions of the new principal."

"There is no high school principal at this writing but, whoever is chosen, give him or her a chance to get settled."

He or she is likely to know less about the day-to-day workings of the school than you do. After a few weeks, when the school routine settles in, ask about any changes from last year the new principal may have made.

If you have a problem with any changes, ask to have them explained."

"Maybe next year all the principals will stay where they are and older brothers, sisters and friends can, for better or worse, tell the younger ones what to expect from their new principal."

Why read when there's TV to watch?

Some 2 million Illinoisans can't read at more than the sixth-grade level.

Federal studies, according to the National Education Association, show 23 million adults are functional illiterates and another 35 million are semi-literate.

According to the latest issue of Illinois Publisher, the estimated 58 million persons with reading problems cost this nation some $225 billion annually "in unemployment benefits, prison costs, lost productivity, and social services."

Figures of millions and billions roll off the tongue too easily in these hard to remember times. It's millions being talked about are people; that the billions in taxes lost could be used ed for many other desperately needed projects.

I was especially impressed when reading in Illinois Publisher about Al Seler, publisher of the Pittsfield Press. His concern translated into working directly with a 42-year-old man who wants to read.

Seler's student, after a year of study, reads at the third-grade level. Perhaps that doesn't seem like much in an age when television brings us pictures of prodigies performing certain functions better than adults, but it means something to Seler and his student. They have reduced the number of non-readers by one.

Both deserve and have my respect.

Two better-known foes of illiteracy have joined the fight — ABC and PBS. In my view, their participation is appropriate.

Television, according to media researcher Marshall McLuhan, is a cool medium. It involves pictures and spoken words elicits large but passive audience participation. It would understandably lead many story read to you is much easier than doing it yourself.

But my opinion should not serve to undermine the programming that will begin airing in September on ABC affiliate Channel 2 and PBS affiliate Channel 9.

Both networks deserve recognition for undertaking the task of bringing information about illiteracy to America's "couch potatoes."

Almost everyone should be able to follow what is being said and shown to them via television.

I wish the best for ABC and PBS in their joint effort.

And I hope the number for the Illinois Literacy Hotline, 1-800-321-9511, is kept busy by those wanting to join the fight against illiteracy.

Venice students to register this week

By Valerie Evenden
Staff writer

All Venice students entering kindergarten and the 5th and 8th grade levels are required to register at the grade school office this week.

Seth Kirkpatrick, VGS principal, announced.

Registrations will be accepted Tuesday, Aug. 19, through Friday, Aug. 22, between 8:30 a.m. and noon and from 1 to 3:30 p.m.

Parents of children entering kindergarten must provide a birth certificate, an immunization record and a physical examination record.

Fifth grade pupils also are required to submit a physical examination record.

At the time of registration, parents or students must pay the district the textbook rental fee.

Textbook fees for students in the 1st through 8th grades are $12 per year. No more than $50 per family will be charged for those families which have several youngsters simultaneously enrolled in the district, Kirkpatrick said.

All annual book rental fees for kindergarten and special education pupils is $8 per student.

Book rental fees are established in the Venice public schools after the issue received voter approval in a 1979 referendum.

The first day of school for Venice students is Tuesday, Aug. 26, when a half-day session is scheduled.

The full-day class schedule begins Wednesday, Aug. 27.

National sells Service Center

National Intergroup Inc. (NII) of Pittsburgh announced Aug. 7 that it has finalized the closing of the sale of its Materials Distribution Group, principally National Steel Service Center Inc., to a corporation, J.B. Pointedexter and Co., for approximately $65 million in cash.

NII said it intends to use proceeds from the sale to repay short-term borrowings that were temporarily used to redeem $70 million of cumulative preferred stock previously issued to its pension funds.

By redeeming the preferred stock, NII said, the net savings in cash flow to NII presently will amount to more than $4 million per year.

National Steel Service Center Inc. is a distributor of flat-rolled metal and building products.

National Intergroup Inc. is a distribution services company with investments in metal and 50 percent ownership in National Steel Corp., which includes the Granite City Division.

National Steel has announced, effective Sept. 1, 1986, it will increase its transaction prices on sheet steel products.

The increase in transaction prices implements the base price increase announced in May, which was not fully realized because of market conditions.

Those May increases amounted to: $12 per net ton on hot rolled products, $15 per net ton on cold-rolled products, and $20 per net ton on galvanized and coated products.

The price increase will also apply to products inventoried since May 31 and not shipped prior to Aug. 31.

Home care here rated outstanding

St. Elizabeth Medical Center's Home Health Department received a certificate of recognition on Aug. 1 from Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Illinois.

Pat Neu-Herrick, home care consultant for Blue Cross and Blue Shield, said the certificate was awarded because of outstanding performance under the Coordinated Home Care Program.

Under this home care program, hospital patients — with permission of their physicians — can elect to recuperate from an illness or injury at home.

Blue Cross and Blue Shield contracts with nursing agencies like the Home Health Department of SEMC to provide nursing care as needed during the recovery period, Neu-Herrick explained.

She added, "Patients seem to recuperate faster in the comfort of their own homes, especially with the home health agency supplying all the necessary skilled care. Moreover, Coordinated Home Care costs only a fraction of what hospital inpatient care does."

2 men face drug charges in staged hostage incident

Two men have been charged in connection with a drug deal linked to a staged hostage incident Aug. 8 in the Mitchell area.

Louis G. Stephens, 29, Wood River, was charged with unlawful possession of a controlled substance (cocaine) with intent to deliver. Donald E. Williams, 28, Edwardsville, was charged with solicitation to commit unlawful delivery of a controlled substance.

The men were charged in informations filed Monday by the Madison County state's attorney's office. Both were arrested Friday.

Stephens was arrested in Edwardsville at a home on Phillips Street after a drug deal. Williams was arrested when he walked out of a house on East Chain of Rocks Road, where he supposedly had been held hostage.

The incident appears to have started with a previous drug deal in East Alton. Thursday night that "went sour," Stephens was shot in the arm during the deal, said Agent Wayne Watson of the Illinois Division of Criminal Investigation. Authorities gave this account of the chain of events.

After the shooting, Stephens was admitted to Wood River Township Hospital. He arrived at the hospital with Williams at about 10 p.m. Thursday and said he had been robbed and shot. Stephens reportedly has not said who shot him.

Stephens was to have been questioned about the incident Friday morning at the hospital by East Alton police. But when police arrived, Stephens was gone.

At about 10:30 a.m. Friday, Edwardsville police received a tip about a hostage situation. The victim (Williams) supposedly was being held in the area because of a drug deal that went bad.

Stephens was to provide drugs to gain Williams' safe release.

A third party whom authorities refused to identify took drugs from Stephens and was to deliver them to Williams' alleged captors.

Watson said the hostage incident was staged by the two men who were at the house on Chain of Rocks Road but left before Williams.

He refused to identify them or the owner of the house. He said the owner was questioned but was not charged.

The third party who aided police also was not charged. The Edwardsville Police Department, the Madison County Sheriff's Department and the DCI have investigated the case.

"There's not much we can do with this unless Stephens wants to tell us who shot him," said East Alton Police Chief Mike Urban.

Flach, Seguso move up

Ambition is a funny thing. It makes people do some strange things.

Take the case of Ken Flach and his doubles partner, Bob Seguso, who played their college tennis at SIUE.

They were securely at the top of the tennis world in doubles. The ex-Cougars were ranked No. 1 in the entire tennis world, and they were the best, no doubt about it. Last year, the duo won a cool $1,000,000.

But, knowing them both, I knew full well neither of them would be satisfied with being the world's best doubles team.

It has all come to light, their plans to make their mark in international singles play. The first sign came recently when Seguso stunned the tennis world by knocking off Jimmy Connors in an early round of an eastern tournament.

That same week, Flach and Seguso lost in doubles, a major hint of what was to come.

This week, they lost out in their plans to make their mark in singles play, although neither of them was disgraced. Connors, the gutsy belter from Belleville, got a measure of revenge on Seguso by beating him in split sets in the Volvo International meet. Seguso had beaten Wimbledon finalist Michael Perforis in an earlier round 6-3, 4-6, 6-3.

Seguso's big serve, his chief offensive weapon, was this time solved by Jimbo, who is acknowledged the best in the world in returning the serve.

This campaign of Flach and

Sports of All Sorts

By Al Barnes

Seguso to make their mark in singles has been rather successful, but it has taken a bitter toll on their doubles play. They lost to the reunited team of John McEnroe and Peter Fleming in straight sets in the quarterfinals of the Volvo in Stratton, Vt., 6-4, 6-2, in an apparent romp for the winners.

But what's even more disturbing to me is: Will Flach and Seguso's lack of concentration on their doubles play affect their chances in the upcoming Davis Cup ties?

A sad note, also on the tennis scene: The recent death of Chuck McKinley in Dallas, of a brain tumor at age 45, saddened his many friends in the St. Louis area. A winner at Wimbledon in 1963, he was a standout in Davis Cup play for the U.S.

McKinley played only once — and lost — in the Granite City Invitational, as a junior (18 and under), before moving on to bigger and better things.

YOUR STARS

VIRGO Aug. 23-Sept. 7- Humanitarian issues must be considered alongside the scientific. Otherwise, you decide unwisely. Sept. 8-Sept. 22 - However unpleasant, you must face the issue causing unrest on the domestic scene. Take the bull by the horns.

LIBRA Sept. 23-Oct. 7- Decide early on whether or not there is any hope of rescue for a project long underway. If not, abandon it!

OCT. 8-Oct. 22- See to your legal rights this week. You may have been paying through the nose unnecessarily.

SCORPIO Oct. 23-Nov. 7- So long as the reasons for your opposition to another's stand are clear, go your own way this week. Nov. 8-Nov. 21 - Gladly - but quietly - accept the help offered you this week. Show your gratitude in ways only you can.

SAGITTARIUS Nov. 22-Dec. 7- Be true to your principles. Make sure your actions reflect your beliefs and standards. Don't compromise. Dec. 8-Dec. 21 - Encourage others to grasp opportunity when it arises. Shape dreams, efforts, goals, rewards.

CAPRICORN Dec. 22-Jan. 6- Despite problems and uneasiness on the home front, this is a good week for the aspiring Capricorn. Jan. 7-Jan. 19 - Wrap ideas in a distinctive package before presenting them to superiors. First impression counts!

AQUARIUS Jan. 20-Feb. 3- Concentrate on those skills that can carry you farthest toward new goals. Share new knowledge. Feb. 4-Feb. 18 - An intriguing series of somewhat mysterious events keeps you hopping both mentally and physically this week.

PISCES Feb. 19-March 5- Success this week ensures your being able to take up new tasks with relative ease in the near future. March 6-March 20 - You can have a tremendous impact upon the success of others this week. Just say the right word at the right time.

ARIES March 21-April 4- Toil and trouble can be avoided this week - but not unless you're willing to take on a partner. April 5-April 19 - Fill the time available to you - which may not be much - with effort on behalf of ailing but curable projects.

TAURUS April 20-May 5- The controversy over your next move abates somewhat early on. Use most of this week to make up your own mind. May 6-May 20 - If you are slow to apply new technology to old difficulties, you may progress very little this week.

GEMINI May 21-June 6- Your enthusiasm may carry you into territory where even the experienced fear to tread. Be careful and observant. June 7-June 20 - You will need both imagination and determination to take advantage of opportunity this week.

CANCER June 21-July 7- Opponents are friendly this week, though no less determined to have their own way than you are. July 8-July 22 - You can score heavily with the opposite sex this week - if you will take the time to see to good grooming.

2 families United Way backers 43 years

Since the United Way concept was originated in this community 43 years ago, two local families have been involved as volunteers. They were part of the organizing force that started what is now the Tri-Cities Area United Way.

Margaret Lee and Avery and Leo Schermer helped create the federated campaign concept to support human service agencies through one annual area-wide fund drive. Janet Quanton, executive director of the Tri-Cities Area United Way, said.

"They have seen many changes take place since the old days of door-to-door solicitation, including the transition to payroll deductions.

"They have seen the UW agency through name changes, starting with Red Feather and changing to the War Chest, Community Chest, United Fund and the present title," she said.

"They have watched the TCAUW grow from the first campaign in 1943, which raised $50,427.40 over $700,000 in contributions in 1985.

"The agencies and programs have survived because they and others have continued to volunteer their time and effort to keep the United Way strong," Quanton said.

The Lees and Schermers have passed the commitment to volunteering in this community on to their children and grandchildren.

Margaret Lee, vice president of public relations at First National Bank in Madison, has been a volunteer for 43 years. A past member of the UW board of directors, she is a division chairman for Madison and Venice in the 1986 campaign and has served on numerous committees within the United Way.

Following in the family tradition is her son, Jack Lee, president of First National Bank in Madison.

He has been involved for a number of years in the campaign and is vice president of the United Way board. An Executive Committee member, campaign solicitor and board member of two UW agencies.

The Schermer family also has been involved since the inception of the organization in 1943.

Owners and operators of Schermer's Super Market and Garden Shop in Madison, brothers Avery and Leo Schermer have been involved with the Boy Scouts and other agencies.

Leo is a UW board member. Avery's son, David, is a UW volunteer along with his wife, Linda, a board member and past Executive Committee member.

"These families are examples of what volunteering is all about," said Quanton. "A little volunteerism by them to such involvement has made our community a better place to live and work."

YOUNG FUND-RAISERS sell Kool-Aid to help the United Way. Left to right are Mandy Schermer, 8, Katherine Lee, 5, John Lee, 3, and Katie Schermer, 6.

Age is no barrier in aiding campaign

Two well-known area families, the Schermers and the Lees, have begun the third generation of support for their community as volunteers for the United Way.

Katherine and John Lee, ages 5 and 3, and Mandy and Katie Schermer, ages 8 and 6, set up a Kool-Aid stand in front of the Madison bank Tuesday afternoon. Their proceeds, $18.60, were donated to the Tri-Cities Area United Way. The Kool-Aid stand was operated Aug. 12 as part of the pre-campaign kick-off for the United Way campaign.

The official annual fund drive will begin in mid-September, but 170 local businesses will be contacted in advance as pace-setters for the drive. These pledge results will be reported at the campaign kickoff breakfast to be held Sept. 16.

President given an enthusiastic welcome

SPRINGFIELD — "I figure you're lucky if you can see two presidents in your life," said Fred Ernst, a Madison County farmer among the estimated 10,000 people who jammed the State Fair grounds to see President Ronald Reagan.

Ernst, who farms about 250 acres near New Douglas, said he had seen one other president in person, Gerald Ford.

He was one of thousands who had to wait in long lines snaking through the fairgrounds to go through metal detector security checkpoints and get into the grandstand.

"You're always pleased to see a president," said Ernst, indicating the wait was worth it.

There were already long lines when the grandstand opened at 8:45 a.m. Aug. 12 and it was still filling up just before the president took the stage almost precisely on schedule, just before 10:30 a.m. When he spoke, there was standing room only in the huge grandstand.

Reagan was the first president to speak in the grandstand since Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1954.

"The stage was actually a flatbed truck piled high with hay as a backdrop, with more bales of hay on each side.

The hay symbolized Illinois' farmers efforts in providing an estimated 3,500 tons of hay for the drought-stricken Southeastern U.S., an effort praised by Reagan, who noted he had met one of the military transport planes bringing hay from Illinois. The "haylift" was proposed by Gov. James Thompson, Reagan noted.

Republican activists and representatives of farm organizations were given tickets for a "VIP" section directly in front of the stage, although they had to stand.

Dr. Edward Ragsdale of Alton, the state Republican Central Committeeman for the 21st Congressional District, stood out in the VIP section in a bright orange cowboy hat, a souvenir of when he was a delegate to the 1984 Republican Convention in Dallas.

As people slowly filled the bleachers, they were entertained first by high school bands and then a country and western combo.

A disc jockey from a radio station, casually attired in jeans, was the unusual choice for a master of ceremonies.

Reagan was joined on the stage by Thompson, Lt. Gov. George Ryan, Illinois Secretary of State Jim Edgar, State Agriculture Director

Larry Verries and U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Richard Lyng.

Reagan drew laughter from the crowd when he started by saying that as commander-in-chief he could dictate the "uniform of the day" and proceeded to take off his suit coat. All the other men on the stage, except a Secret Service agent, dutifully doffed their coats.

The president got fewer laughs from an opening joke about a three-legged chicken.

The usual pageantry of a White House visit was apparent, with hundreds of small American flags distributed to the audience and the release of dozens of red, white and blue balloons at the end of Reagan's 15-minute address.

The address itself contained little new in the way of major announcements on the farm economy. Illinois farmers were particularly interested in whether Reagan would propose a solution for the grain storage shortage "crisis."

The president noted that "some producers fear lack of space in elevators or farm bins will make their crops ineligible for price support loans."

Reagan said that in an "innovation" he had directed Lyng to make it certain that grain unable to make it into usual storage — "even grain simply stored on the ground — remains eligible for price support loans."

Madison County farmer Ernst said he thought that would be all right for short periods up to 30 days, but if some protective plastic sheeting is placed under the grain.

He suggested the government should go beyond that, however, and give the grain it acquires through the price support program to the drought-stricken Southeast.

"They're paying storage costs on it so they might as well give it away instead," he said.

An Illinois county manager for the federal Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service of the USDA, which administers the crop support loan programs, did not think the president's plan was a solution. The ASOS official, who was working a state fair booth, said storing the grain on the ground could result in much of it being spoiled and useless.

However, he conceded the storage problem had not been solved and, in his own county, he had 1.1 million bushels of corn coming next month for which he still had not found storage space.

Light rail project gets Senate funds

The U.S. Senate transportation subcommittee of the Senate Appropriations Committee recently approved a $12.8 million appropriation for the St. Louis light rail project, Metro Link, as part of the $10 billion transportation appropriations bill.

The $12.8 million brings to $39.3 million the amount of money appropriated by Congress for the St. Louis system.

"This, once again, demonstrates the commitment that Congress has to the St. Louis project," said Les Sterman, executive director of the East-West Gateway Coordinating Council. "It's the most cost-effective project in the county. Even more significant than the funding is the Senate's instructions to the Urban Mass Transportation Administration to enter into a full-funding contract with the Metro Link project."

A full-funding contract is a formal commitment by the federal government to fund the construction of a major capital works project. The designation of St. Louis project for such a contract would commit the federal government to the release of appropriated funds and to a timetable for project completion.

The system is planned on a route that connects Lambert Field and Berkeley with downtown St. Louis and Illinois. The $250 million cost of the project is one of the least expensive of its type in the country, using the Eads Bridge, the tunnel under Eighth Street and 14 miles of rail right-of-way, the project designers have cut costs and recycled unused local assets.

Members of Citizens for Modern Transit (CMT), an organization of volunteers who have supported the light rail project, were jubilant about the Senate vote.

"With this appropriation, construction of the system can begin," said Thomas W. Purcell, CMT president. "We are gratified by this success and very pleased to be part of an important addition to the development of the region."

The House also approved a $12.3 million appropriation for the light rail project on July 30.

Assessment law revised to ease farmers' plight

Gov. James R. Thompson signed a new law Aug. 13 that revises the farmland assessment law and provides tax relief to many Illinois farmers, said to be suffering from unrealistic and uneven assessments of farmland values.

"Even some of Illinois' most efficient farmers have found themselves trapped by the roller coaster farm economy. Declines in both land values and market prices on crops have placed an alarming number of farmers in jeopardy, forcing some of their land altogether," Gov. James R. Thompson said at a bill-signing ceremony during a meeting of the Task Force on the Future of Rural Illinois, held at the State Fair.

"Illinois farmers, like farmers in every state in this nation, have fallen victim to international economic policies and pressures — impossible for them to anticipate and beyond their ability to control," Thompson said.

"The state can control neither world markets nor foreign policy, but we can control those government policies within our own borders affecting farmers. It is crucial that we ensure the greatest degree of equity in assessing and taxing the land that is the lifeblood of the farming community."

"While eliminating tax inequities for farmer, Senate Bill 415 will help stabilize the property tax base for local governments and prevent major fluctuations in future farm property valuations."

John White Jr., president of the Illinois Farm Bureau, said, "With the signing of SB 415, farmers will finally receive the full benefits of a farmland assessment plan first legislated in 1977."

"For the first time, every county in the state will be able to base farmland tax valuation on the capability of the land to produce agricultural products, rather than the 'land's market value,'" White said.

It is long-needed legislation, both by farmers and public officials. It protects taxpayers from dramatic increases in assessments and protects local taxing bodies, including school districts, from a drastic decline in revenue."

David Lyng, president of the Taxpayers' Federation of Illinois, said, "The governor has once again come to the aid of farmers by correcting a serious injustice to the individuals facing assessment increases when assessed values were, in fact, due to decline."

The new law freezes the 1986 certified values for each productivity index for the next two years. The goal is to give county assessment officials a chance to catch up with the new law in areas of the state where there had been delays in implementing the original farmland assessment revisions.

The new law removes the current 10 percent per year countywide limit on the increases or decreases in equalized assessed value (EAV) of farmland, allowing it to more closely reflect the actual, value of farmland.

Large item pickup will continue

GRANITE CITY — Removal of large discarded items will continue each Wednesday, though the annual city cleanup program has ended.

City Inspector Erv DeRousse said residents can continue placing bulky discarded items near trash containers each Wednesday for pickup by Laidlaw Waste Systems Inc.

"This will include items such as water heaters, tires, appliances, etc.," he said.

If the discarded items are not removed, DeRousse said, residents should call the city sanitation department at 452-6220.

DeRousse said he was pleased with this year's cleanup program that ended July 30.

"I think it was a very successful program this summer," he said.

He said his department had fewer Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA) workers this year than last year to assist in the cleanup program.

"Their work exceeded the pickup completed the previous year," DeRousse said.

mittee has done by hiring her," committee member Juanita Crawley said at a committee meeting Wednesday.

"I THINK the committee needs the information to speak to some of the concerns," Burcky said.

One concern voiced by some seniors is the need for office space and a senior facility. Burcky told the committee he hopes some of the information gathered by Reko could address this need.

Seniors John Petish and Gertrude Barkley spoke to the committee about their hopes for a senior office at the Granite City Township Hall.

"WE'RE JUST spinning our wheels," Petish said. "We need an office in that building."

Barkley asked several questions concerning senior activities, but committee members declined to answer.

Under the committee's bylaws, interested citizens can address the committee for two minutes during a time set aside at the beginning of the meeting.

HOWEVER, committee members do not have to respond to specific questions or comments or engage in dialogue with the speaker, Burcky explained.

The committee will meet again Wednesday, Oct. 22. Instead of a September meeting, Burcky urged committee members to visit the Edwardsville Senior Center or other senior citizen facilities.
